Palm Beach dining: Margarita-making class at Coyo Taco will benefit Dress for Success

School's in session on Oct. 23 at Coyo Taco in Royal Poinciana Plaza in Palm Beach.

The subject: how to make a variety of margarita cocktails — while enjoying drinking one, along with light bites.

The teachers: Coyo's margarita experts, who turn out untold numbers of the tequila cocktails on a regular basis.

It's all part of an aimed-at-fun, nonprofit-benefiting Margarita Workshop at Coyo Taco.

The 6 p.m. event benefits Dress for Success of the Palm Beaches and one of that nonprofit organization's support arms: Y.E.S. (Young Executives for Success) of the Palm Beaches.

Dress for Success of the Palm Beaches' mission is to "empower women to achieve economic independence" through various Dress for Success initiatives, including professional suiting, job-readiness and career-development programs.

At the Oct. 23 margarita workshop at Coyo Taco, guests will learn how to make a variety of margaritas, including Coyo's Paleta-Rita featuring a traditional Mexican paleta (popsicle) floating in it.

Coyo Taco prides itself on making margaritas, using such ingredients as freshly squeezed lime juice, pure agave nectar and 100-percent agave tequila.

Depending on the time of year, the casual eatery — with tacos, guacamole, salads and more — has featured everything from pumpkin margaritas to blueberry and pineapple margaritas.

The Oct. 23 margarita-making workshop, benefiting Dress for Success, is $25.
